Your left ear hearing test results showed normal hearing in the speech range (low and mid pitches) and a mild hearing loss in the high frequencies (pitches). Your right ear hearing test results showed a mild hearing loss in the speech range (low and mid pitches) and a severe hearing loss in the high frequencies (pitches).

Compared to your current baseline test, there have been no significant changes in your hearing. However, you have had two or more decreases in your hearing since your first test in the amount defined by OSHA as a Standard Threshold Shift.

Otoscope screening (visual examination of your ears) was within normal limits.

This hearing test will be reviewed by a physician or an audiologist to determine if further follow-up is required. It is important to have your hearing tested annually in order to detect any changes in your hearing. To protect your hearing, wear properly fitted and maintained hearing protection when you are in a noise hazardous area, whether on or off the job.
